Überblick

In Burkina Faso''s capital city, the Ouagadougou Northwest Grid Virtual Energy Storage project is rewriting the rules of energy management. Think of it like a digital battery bank - it doesn''t physically store electricity, but intelligently balances supply and demand across the grid. The proposed project will combine wind, solar, battery energy storage and green hydrogen to help local industry decarbonise. You know, it's sort of ironic - Ouagadougou gets over 3,000 hours of sunlight annually, yet 42% of urban households still experience daily power cuts. As climate change pushes temperatures to record highs (we're talking 43°C last April), the demand for reliable electricity in Burkina Faso's capital. African Energy takes a closer look at the projects and the impact they could have on the Société.
